INDERA®

A PROUD HERITAGE

Although our company began in 1914, our real beginning dates back to the early 1800's...

Johann Christian Fries, an immigrant from Germany arrived in Salem, NC in 1809. Salem was a Moravian Church congregation settlement made up of folks who originally came there from Bethlehem, PA. Johann had two sons, Francis L. Fries and Henry Fries. These brothers were industrious and ambitious... so much so that the traditional trades of Salem did not satisfy them. They were caught up in the early stages of the industrial revolution. They saw opportunity in a new industry of the south - textiles. Moravian Church leadership was not encouraging and asked them to set-up shop outside of Salem if they wanted to pursue their dream. So the two brothers found a location about a quarter of a mile out-of-town and built the F&H Woolen Mills.

Brothers Francis and Henry, F&H, were smart, very hard-working and lucky. They traveled extensively in the north to learn about yarn spinning and fabric production. They bought the best machinery and employed the most modern techniques available. The F&H Woolen Mills grew dramatically and prospered.

President, Indera Mills Co.
Fourth Generation Owner

Francis Henry Fries

Francis Fries had a son of the same name - Francis Henry Fries. His nickname was Colonel Fries. The Colonel built five textile companies in his lifetime - Mayo Mills, Avalon Mills, Washington Mills, Oakdale Mills and lastly Indera Mills in 1914.

Today, only one of the Fries businesses is still known by its original name... Indera Mills Company. All of the rest have either folded or morphed into something else. Indera has survived the test of time and prospered. We are proud to be part of the Fries legacy and to carry our heritage into the future.

Cotton that Dries like Polyester

WHAT IS TRANSDRY® TECHNOLOGY?

TransDRY® technology for cotton is a patented, high-performance moisture management application that allows fabrics to wick and spread perspiration as well as, or better than, most high-tech synthetic fabrics. You get the comfort and softness of your favorite cotton thermals, along with wicking and fast-drying performance.

QUICK DRYING PERFORMANCE

TransDRY® fabrics absorb less and don't become over-saturated during exercise, which allows them to dry faster. The technology offers consistent results of improved drying time compared to equivalent untreated cotton fabrics and equal performance when compared to synthetic fabrics.

For more information about TransDRY®, please log onto www.cottoninc.com.

HISTORY OF THE UNION SUIT

The Union Suit is a one-piece long underwear garment. Created in Utica, New York, it originated as women's wear during the 19th century as an alternative to constrictive under garments and soon gained popularity among men as well. The first union suit was patented 151 years ago in 1868 as "emancipation union under flannel." Traditionally made of red flannel with long arms and long legs, the suit buttoned up the front from the neck to the groin area and had a one-button flap in the rear cover the buttocks often referred to as "access hatch", "drop-seat", and "fireman's flap" - to name a few.

The Union Suit remained in common use in North America into the 20th century. As its popularity waned, it became chiefly work men's wear, increasingly replaced by two-piece long underwear known as long johns.

Indera Mills introduced the Union Suit into their product mix in 1982 with Style No. 6951 - The Thermal Knit Jumpsuit Pajama. From our 1982 Fall Catalog - "For lounging or sleeping warmth. Placket front is closed with cute heart buttons. Red heart appliqué on chest. Elasticized back drop seat." Indera introduced the men's Union Suit in 1986, featuring a button-down placket front, and a one-button back flap in the classic red color. Since then, Indera has produced a steady stream of the historic garment every fall and winter season. Mostly sold to farm stores, the classic red union suit is a staple in the line and of the brand.

Here's to another 151 years of the Union Suit!
