Invite Birds, Bats And Butterflies To Your Yard

- 1 Tree cavities can be difficult for nesting birds to find in many developed areas. BIRDHOUSES offer a good alternative. Chickadees, titmice, wrens, and even screech-owls are some of the birds that might take up residence in appropriately sized nest boxes.
- 2 Carefully placed BIRD FEEDERS provide opportunities to watch birds at close range. Different feeders are designed for different seeds, so choose appropriate seeds and feeders for the birds in your area.
- 3 NATIVE PLANTS, including trees, shrubs, and groundcover, create multiple layers of attractive habitat for birds and beneficial insects. Plant shrubs in a way that best mimics natural habitat, and use them around the foundation of your home and the borders of your yard.
- 4 A source of WATER, such as a well-maintained birdbath or small pond, will attract birds and beneficial insects such as butterflies. Shallow edges allow birds to bathe and drink without getting too wet.

For more information, visit www.audubonathome.org/yard

- 5 Hummingbirds may be attracted to a HUMMINGBIRD FEEDER, especially when the feeder is placed among red or yellow tube-shaped wildflowers.
- 6 A BUTTERFLY GARDEN of native wildflowers, including plants that provide food for caterpillars, will attract a host of winged jewels to your yard.
- 7 A BAT HOUSE mounted on your house may provide an important roosting site for these nocturnal insect hunters.
- 8 An estimated 1 billion birds die each year from crashing into windows. Decorate the outside surface of your WINDOWS to make the glass visible to birds, or install screens as a barrier to keep them at a distance.
- 9 CATS kill millions of birds and other native animals each year. Keep your cat indoors to protect birds, as well as to keep your cat safe and healthy.

BIRDS TO HELP IN YOUR YARD

When designing and maintaining the habitat in your yard, try to provide food, shelter and nesting sites for five or six bird species that need the most support in your region of the country. Then keep a close watch to see how the birds respond to your efforts.

To determine which species near you need the most help and to find ways to help support them on your property visit:
